

Mill Hill

PRIMARY SCHOOL

Learning for a lifetime

Welcome

We believe that children learn best when they are happy, well cared for and secure in themselves. Therefore, relationships within school are based upon mutual respect, both between adults and children and between the children themselves.

At Mill Hill, we develop a culture of high expectations in all areas of school life. Children are given the tools to succeed in a wide range of challenging learning opportunities. We develop a positive attitude to lifelong learning, which is modelled by our staff who show a purposeful and enthusiastic approach in everything they do. We encourage independence where children learn to take responsibility for their own learning and their actions, whether they are in a classroom, playing outside or taking on a new adventure. During this time they demonstrate our four values – Compassion, Respect, Commitment and Success.

We value the importance of the partnership between school and home, so we plan regular opportunities to gather and share information about the children and to provide any support that our families may need.

Learning for a lifetime

“ People will always come to your aid and help you to learn and have fun.”

Pupil

♥ Compassion

We show thoughtfulness and consideration towards other people at Mill Hill and we understand that everyone needs to feel cared for, regardless of their backgrounds. We work together to show empathy towards others, as well as learning to communicate our own views and opinions positively.

We support each other to manage our emotions by using the strategies we are taught as we understand that a kind gesture can make a difference to someone's day. During lessons, children support each other in their learning by explaining their ideas or sharing a useful resource. In other aspects of the day, children will help others without being asked so that each individual feels valued.

“ We accept people for who they are.”

Pupil

Respect

We believe that children need to treat people, places and things in a kind, caring and thoughtful way and our pupils show this level of respect both inside the school and on the playground. Our pupils respect everyone’s right to learn and it is a priority that our classrooms are positive environments.

We ensure that we speak to our friends and staff in school in the way that we ourselves wish to be treated, as well as celebrating the need to tidy and look after our belongings and classrooms. We value honesty as a sign of respect and teach the children of Mill Hill that being truthful is a positive attribute. Children are rewarded with house points for showing that they value everyone and everything.

Mill Hill for providing that first step and ensuring our child
loves learning.”

Commitment

Sticking at something and continuing to develop as a learner is a crucial life skill for children to develop and acquire at primary school. Ensuring that children continue to progress and reflect on their learning is a fundamental platform for them to build on in their future.

We expect that children will commit to practising core skills and facts, commit to read regularly and commit to take the next step in learning something new so they can be successful. At Mill Hill, we like children to think about all aspects of the curriculum and whether they are developing their swimming stroke or mastering their handwriting techniques, both of these are equally valued. We consistently model our strapline of 'learning for a lifetime'.

“ Thank you for helping our children to be the best they can be.”

Success

Children at Mill Hill work hard for success and understand the importance of feeling successful. This enables them to broaden their future opportunities and prospects. However, success is not just academic. It is something significant for that individual, both child and adult.

Each person will have their own success at Mill Hill Primary School in their own individual way and as a team we work together so these achievements, however small, are recognised by the whole community. Children may be awarded compliments, house points or asked to move their names on zone boards for achieving success. We want children, families and staff to be proud of what they achieve and enjoy celebrating these achievements with others, whether it's in the classroom or as a whole school in our celebration assembly, where we share what we have achieved and what we are proud of.

“ My child cannot wait to go to school.
He has grown in confidence and comes home daily with a huge smile on his face.”

Parent

“ I like learning because it’s always fun!”

We appreciate what an important decision it is when you are choosing a school for your child.
