

‘Exceptional learners who are nurtured and prepared for tomorrow’

Friday 19th September 2025

Message from Mrs Morgan

I am delighted to share our first newsletter update of the academic year. As we return to school, I am pleased to report on the positive start our pupils have made.

Our pupils have returned looking exceptionally smart in their school uniforms, demonstrating a commitment to our school's standards. We have been focusing on re-establishing our school routines and systems, which are crucial for creating a structured and supportive learning environment. I am particularly impressed with how smoothly our pupils are settling into their new classes.

A significant milestone this term is that our new Year R Deer class is now operating on a full-time basis.

In response to parental feedback received during the summer, we have carefully considered suggestions about homework communication. Instead of traditional 'meet the teacher' sessions, we will be distributing year group overviews that outline homework expectations for each year group. These documents will be communicated to families next week.

I would also like to draw your attention to two important notices. Firstly, we are a nut-free school to ensure the safety of all our pupils. Secondly, we are promoting healthy snacks and would appreciate your support in providing nutritious options, moving away from cake-based treats.

We have only been back at school for just over two weeks – but we have been working really hard in the new, Year 1s. We have been exploring the class room and learning where all the things belong so that we can keep our learning spaces tidy and safe. Maybe one week we'll win the weekly tidy class award.

We have revisited the school values and decided what they mean to us as a class and how they can help us be the best we can be.

We are excited to have started reading, and taking the Monster Phonics books home to share. We hope our grownups will help us practise throughout the week – we have so many exciting books to share.
